Consular Correspondence

Towards the close of Ottoman occupation in mid 19th century, with the establishment of foreign consulates in many parts of the Ottoman Empire, there are increasing instances of correspondence between the Consulates of the Great Powers, most of which were situated in Larnaca, and the Ottoman Governors in Nicosia. Most are undated but rough estimates can be made from the period that those Governors mentioned by name, are recorded to have served in Cyprus. They range from 1848 to the 1860s. The contents are usually given in summary by the addressee's office, in Arabic script.
