Dear Dr. Castells,

re: CHRISTMAS STAMP FOR 1955.

The Annual Sales Campaign of the Christmas Stamp Fund opens on Monday, 7th November, and it gives me much pleasure to enclose for your records some of this year's Christmas Stamps. These are sold at a penny each, and the maintenance derived from this sale is used for maintenance of the Preventoria (Sunshine Homes) established in this country for the reception of boys and girls who are direct contacts of TB sufferers, thereby carrying out the aim of the Fund which is "PREVENTION OF TB AMONG CHILDREN."

The Stamps are sent with the Compliments of the National Executive Committee, and with kind regards and all good wishes for the coming Festive Season, also, for every success in gaining control of this disease in your country,

I remain,
Yours sincerely,

Secretary : (Miss E. May).

1st Trans-Africa Waterways Expedition

1958

The First Trans-African Waterways Expedition 1958.

Dr Daan Marais led the first Trans-African Waterway Expedition in 1958. Setting out from the Port of Chinde in the Zambezi estuary on the Indian Ocean on 1 June, they travelled 5 792 km via four lakes and seven major rivers to reach the Atlantic Ocean at Banana Point in the Congo River estuary on 23 August. They completed the journey in three custom-designed fibreglass boats with outboard engines. An overland support team with two vehicles provided provisions, fuel and portage over impassable areas. The primary purpose of the expedition was to survey the route to determine the possible development of an equatorial water highway, providing arterial links of commerce and industry between the two oceans.

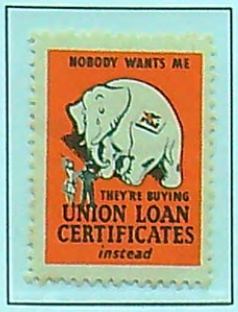

Below is the specially made postcard for the expedition cancelled 23rd May 1958 Edenvale-South Africa, Mozambique-Beira 27th May 1958, Malawi-Blantyre 13th June 1958, Kenya-Kigoma 29th July 1958 and Congo-Stanley 12 August 1958 very view postcards are known fine and scarce.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

War Labels

Early in July 1915 after the campaign in South West Africa ended the Union government undertook to organize armed forces for service overseas. Because South African Defense Force units could only be used for defense, special service 'corporate' units of volunteers were formed for the expeditionary force. An infantry brigade, heavy artillery brigade, signals unit and medical units were raised, trained, and dispatched.

On 22 July Pietermaritzburg became a major recruiting center because there was strong local feeling that as provincial capital, the city should supply one of the infantry regiments for overseas. There was a strong feeling against paying men defending the Empire overseas less than those defending the Union in Africa and a Mayor's Overseas Contingent Fund was opened in the city on 16 August that was soon amalgamated with the Overseas Contingent Section of the Governor-General's Fund. Because those who served in the East African expeditionary force were paid more than those in the overseas expeditionary force a deputation of mayors arose to ask for equal pay. The Durban town council agreed to top up the pay of European permanent employees with dependents who served.

In the battle of the Somme the 1st South African Infantry Brigade lost three-quarters of its fighting strength at Delville Wood (15-20 July). Casualties in the 2nd (Natal and Free State) Battalion were 482 including all of the officers. Almost all in the South African Brigade was killed or wounded. In the spring of 1917 there was a large number of convalescent soldiers from Europe and the campaign in German East Africa. The East Africa expeditionary force suffered many fewer killed and wounded but the campaign had been destroyed by disease.[1]

Numerous official and semi-official organizations helped fund the war effort then care for the wounded, and families of those lost. The following fund-raising Labels were used by some of those groups
