Walt Disney's
The Art of Skiing
Release date: 1941

To demonstrate the art of skiing, Goofy is dragged out of bed and forced onto his skis. When he finally hits the slopes, he hits them hard! At every twist and turn, Goofy shows novice skiers what not to do when they navigate the runs.

Goofy thinks he's a real hot dog, but he gets a cold shiver on his face when he hits into a tree. In the end, Goofy smashes through a wall and lands in the safest place to be!

"Daisy is 'the quarrelsome nag whose idea of heaven is the purchase of a new flowered hat'"

— Film Critic Judith Martin

Daisy's other voice "is quite different: slow and languorous, it is more like the voice of a sensuous Southern Belle; and when speaking in this mode Daisy tends to act like such a Southern Belle, too. Her Southern Belle self is generally restrained and indeed civilised, although quite capable of exploding abruptly into violence for purposes of dramatic effect."

— John Grant, Walt Disney's Animated Characters, 1993
