COUNTER COIL PAIRS

These stamps were dispensed from machines used by post office counter clerks; the public did not have direct access to them. The coils were made up of sections and each section (of 16, 20, or 24 stamps) was divided by a gutter and numbered 1 to 19 (in black) to help in their accounting.

"6" doubled

All stamps watermarked Multiple NZ and star sideways, except top stamp of counter coil number 12, which is upright.

In 1893 the New Zealand government entered into contract with Messrs. Miller, Truebridge & Reich giving them the right to utilize the backs of the "Second Sidefaces" for advertising purposes. All denominations from 1d to 1/- were used. A popular New Zealand depression hobby was the reconstruction of sheets by using the ads to locate stamp positions.
