JAMHURI = "REPUBLIC"

A revolt against the Arab-dominated government began on 12th January 1964, led by Ugandan John Okello. Postal services were suspended during the uprising but resumed on 17th January. The current definitive series was locally overprinted by hand, "Jamhuri 1964."

Numerous errors exist in the handstamped overprint but it is impossible to distinguish between cases of genuine oversight and those made at the request of purchasers.

A post office under Indian administration was opened in Zanzibar in 1868, but was closed the following year due to protests by the British Consul, Sir John Kirk. It was reopened on 1st October 1875 as "a foreign post office having special relations with the Indian Post Office." The use of Indian stamps was compulsory. On 10th November 1895, postal matters were transferred to British East African administration.
